Ode To Autumn

To Autumn by John Keats | Poetry Foundation

“To Autumn” is an ode—a celebratory address to a person, place or thing Think of something commonplace that you experience everyday and write an ode commemorating some aspect or quality of it See Pablo Neruda’s “ Ode to a Large Tuna in the Market ” and Kevin Young’s “ Ode to the Midwest ” for other examples

Ode: To Autumn - MIT OpenCourseWare

Ode: To Autumn SEASON of mists and mellow fruitfulness, Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun; Conspiring with him how to load and bless With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eves run; To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees, And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core; To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells

KEATS - Causenglish

The ode to Autumn might on the surface seem an attempt by Keats to move away from his engrossing themes But eh very fact that Keats indulges autumn the images that are perennial and repeatedly come back year after year shows it has some kind of truth factor that is these in the urn As a season autumn may be

My Favorite Poem: Autumn Testament, by Pablo Neruda

From Autumn Returns A day dressed in mourning falls from the bells like a fluttering veil of a roving widow it is a color, a dream of cherries sunk in the earth a tail of smoke restlessly arriving to change the color of water and of kisses So if you prefer some other poem of his to Autumn Testament I certainly won't
